Liber primus.

ELEGIA. 1.

Quemadmodum à Cupidine pro bellis amores scribere coactus sit.

WE which were Ouids five bookes now are three;
For these before the rest preferreth he.
If reading sue thou plaint of tediousnesse,
Two tane away, thy labour will be lesse.
With Muse prepar'd I meant to sing of Armes,
Choosing a subiect fit for fierce alarms.
Both verses were alike till love (men say)
Began to smile and tooke one foote away.
Rash boy, who gave the power to change a line?
We are the Muses Prophets, none of thine.
What if thy mother take Dianaes bowe?
Shall Dian fanne, when love begins to glowe.
In wooddie groves ist meete that Ceres raigue?
And quiver-bearing Dian till the plaine.
Who'le set the faire trest sunne in battell ray
While Mars doth take the Aonian Harpe to play.
Great are thy Kingdomes, over strong and large,
Ambitious impe, why seekst thou further charge?
Are all things thine? the Muses Temple thine?
Then scarce can Phæbus say, this Harpe is mine.
When in this workes first verse I trode alott,
Love slackt my Muse, and made my numbers soft.
I have no Mistresse, nor no Favorite,
Being fittest matter for a wanton wit.
Thus I complain'd, but love vnlockt his quiver.
Tooke out the shaft, ordain'de my heart to shiver:
And bent his sinewie bowe vpon his knee,

Saying

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Saving Poet heere's a worke befeeming thee?
 Oh woe is mee, he never shootes but hits,
 I burne, love in my idle bosome sits,
 Let my first verse be sixe, my last five feet,
 Fare-well sterne warre, for blunter Poets meet.
Elegian Muse, that warblest amorous layes,
 Gitt my shine brow with Sea-banke Mirtle praise!

ELEGIA. 2.

Quod primo amore correptus, in triumphum ductus et a cupidine patitur.

VVHat makes my bed seeme hard seeing it is soft?
 Or why slips downe the coverlet so oft?
 Although the nights be long, I sleepe not tho.
 My sides are sore with tumbling too and fro.
 Were love the cause, it's like I should descry him,
 Or lyes he close, and shootes where none can spie him.
 'Twas so, hee stracke me with a slender dart,
 'Tis cruell love turmoyle my captive heart.
 Yeelding or struggling doe we give him might,
 Let's yeeld, a burthen eas'ly borne is light.
 I saw a brandisht fire increale in strength,
 Which being not slackt, I saw it dye at length.
 Young Oxen newly yoakt are beaten more,
 Then Oxen that have drawne the plough before.
 And rough jades, mouthes with stubborn bits are torne,
 But manag'd horses heads are lightly borne.
 Unwilling lovers, love doth more torment,
 Then such as in their bondage feele content.
 Loe I confesse, I am thy captive I,
 And hold my conquer'd hands for thee to tye.
 What needst thou warre, I sue to thee for grace,
 With armes to conquer armelesse men is base.
 Yoake Venus Doves, put Mirtle on thy haire,

Vulcan

OVIDS ELEGIES

Vulcan will give thee chariots rich and faire,
The people thee applauding thou shalt stand,
Guiding the harmlesse Pigeons with thy hand,
Young men, and women shalt thou lead as thrall,
So will thy triumph seeme magnificall,
I lately caught, will have a new made wound,
And captive like be manacled and bound.
Good meaning shame, and such as seeke loves wracke,
Shall follow thee their hands tyed at their backe.
Thee all shall feare, and worship as a King,
Jo, triumphing shall thy people sing.
Smooth speeches, feare, and rage shall by thee ride,
Which troopes have alwayes beene on Cupids side;
Thou with these souldiers conquereſt gods and men,
Take these away, where is thine honour then?
Thy mother shall from heaven applaud this show,
And on their faces heapes of Roses strow.
With beauty of thy wings thy faire haire gilded,
Ride golden love in chariots richly builded.
Vnlesse I erre, full many shalt thou burne,
And give wounds infinite at every turne.
In spite of thee forth will thine arrowes flye,
A scorching flame burnes all the standers by.
So having conquer'd Inde was Bacchus hevv,
Thee pompous Birds, and him two Tygers drew!
Then seeing I grace thy show in following thee,
Forbeare to hurt thy selfe in spoyling me.
Behold thy kinsmans Cæsars prosperous bands.
Who guards thee conquered wth his conquerings hands;

ELEGIA. 3.

Ad Amicam.

I Aske but right; let he that caught me late,
Either love, or cause that I may never hate;

OVIDS ELEGIES

I aske too much, would she but let me love her.
Love knowes with such like praers I daily move her;
Accept him that will serve thee all his youth,
Accept him that will love with spotlesse truth.
If loslie titles cannot make me thine,
That am descended but of Knightly line,
Soone may you plough the little land I have,
I gladly grant my parents given, to save.
Apollo, Bacchus, and the Muses may,
And Cupid who hath markt me for thy pray;
My spotlesse life, which but to Gods gives place,
Naked simplicitie, and modest grace.
I love but one, and her I love, change never,
If men have faith, Ile live with thee for ever.
The yeares that fatall destinie shall give,
Ile live with thee, and dye, ere thou shall grieve.
Be thou the happy subiect of my Bookes,
That I may write things worthy thy faire lookes.
By verses honored so got her name,
And she to whom in shape of Swaane love came,
And she that on a fain'd Bull swamme to land,
Gripping his false hornes with her Virgin hand.
So likewise we will through the world be rung,
And with my name shall thine be alwayes sung.

ELEGIA. 4.

Amicam, qua arte, quibusue nuxibus in cena, presente viro uti debeat, admonet.

THy husband to a banquet goes with me,
Pray God it may his latest supper be,
Shall I sit gazing as a bashfull guest,
While others touch the damsell I love best?
Wilt lying vnder him his bosome clippe?
About thy necke shall he at pleasure skippe?

Mar-

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Marvaile not, though the faire Bride did incite,
 The drunken *Centaur*es to a suddaine fight.
 I am no halfe horſe, nor in woods I dwell,
 Yet ſcarſe my hands from thee containe I well.
 But how thou ſhouldſt behave thy ſelfe now know;
 Nor let the windes away my warning blowe,
 Before thy husband come, though I not ſee,
 What may be done, yet there before him bee.
 Lie with him gently, when his limbes he ſpread,
 Vpon the bed, but on my foote firſt tread.
 View me, my becke, and ſpeaking countenance
 Take, and receive each ſecret amaroꝝ glauncer
 Words without voyce, ſhall on my eye-browes ſit,
 Lines thou ſhalt read in wine by my hand writ.
 When our laſcivious toyes come in thy minde,
 Thy Roſie cheekes be to thy tombe inclinde.
 If ought of me thou ſpeak'ſt in inward thought,
 Let thy ſoft finger to thy eare be brought.
 When I (my light) do or ſay ought that pleaſe thee,
 Turne round thy gold-ring, as it were to eaſe thee
 Strike on the boord like them that pray for evill
 When thou doeſt wiſh thy husband at the devill.
 What wine he fills thee, wiſely will him drinke,
 Aſke thou the boy, what thou enough doeſt thinke.
 When thou haſt taſted I will take the cup,
 And where thou drinkſt, on that part I will ſup.
 If hee gives thee what firſt himſelfe did taſte,
 Even in his face his offered Goblets caſt.
 Let not thy necke by his vile armes be preſt,
 Nor leane thy ſoft head on his boiſtrous breſt.
 Thy boſomes Roſeat buds let him not finger,
 Chiefely on thy lips let not his lips linger.
 If thou giv'ſt kiſſes, I ſhall all diſcloſe,
 Say they are mine, and hands on thee impoſe.
 Yet this Ile ſee, but if thy gowne ought cover,

OVIDS ELEGIES

Suspicious feare in all my veynes will hover,
 Mingle not thighs, nor to his legge joyne things;
 Nor thy soft foote with his hard toote combine.
 I have bin wanton, therefore are perplext,
 And with mistrust of the like measure vext,
 I and my vench oft under clothes did lurke,
 When pleasure mov'd us to our sweetest worke:
 Doe not thou so, but throw thy mantle hence,
 Least I should thinke thee guilty of offence.
 Intreat thy husband drinke, but doe not kisse,
 And while he drinke, to adde more do not misse,
 If hee lyes downe with Wine and sleepe opprest,
 The thing and place shall counsell us the rest.
 When to goe homewards we rise all along,
 Have care to walke in middle of the throng,
 There will I finde thee, or be found by thee,
 There touch what ever thou canst touch of mee.
 Aye me I warme what profits some few howers,
 But we must part, whē heav'n with black night lowers.
 At night thy husband clips thee, I will weepe
 And to the doores sight of thy selfe keepe:
 Then will he kisse thee, and not onely kisse
 But force thee give him my stolne hony blisse.
 Constrain'd against thy will give it the pezzant,
 Forbeare sweet words, and in your sport unpleasant.
 To him I pray it no delight may bring,
 Or if it doe: to thee no joy thence spring,
 But though this night thy fortune be to try it,
 To mee to morrow constantly deny it.

ELEGIA. 5.

Corinna Concubitus:

IN Summers heate and mid-time of the day,
 To rest my limbes upon a bed I lay;

One

OVIDS ELEGIES.

One window shut, the other open stood,
Which gave such light, as twinkles in a wood,
Like twilight glimps at setting of the Sunne,
Or night being past, and yet not day begun,
Such light to shamefast Maidens must be shewn,
Where they may sport, and seeme to be unknowne.

Then came Corinna in a long loose gowne,
Her white necke hid with tresses hanging downe:
Resembling faire Semiramis going to bed,
Or Lays of a thousand wooers sped.

I snatcht her gowne being thin, the harme was small,
Yet striv'd shee to be covered there-withall:
And striving thus as one that would be cast,
Betray'd her selfe, and yeelded at the last.

Starke naked as she stood before mine eye,
Not one wenne in her body could I spie.

What armes and shoulders did I touch and see,
How apt her breasts were to be prest by me.

How smooth a belly under her wast saw I?

How large a legge, and what a lusty thigh?

To leaye the rest all lik'd me passing well,

I cling'd her naked body, downe she fell:

Iudge you the rest, being try'd she bad me kisse
Iove send me more such after-noones as this.

ELEGIA. 6.

Ad Ianitorem, ut fores sibi aperiat.

VNworthy porter, bound in chaines full sore,
On mooved hookes set ope the churlish dore.

Little I aske, a little entrance make

The gate halfe ope my bent side in will take.

Long love my body to such use make slender

And to get out doth like apt members render.

He shewes me how unheard to passe the watch.

And

OVIDS ELEGIES.

And guides my feete least stumbling falls they catch;
 But in times past I fear'd vaine shades, and night,
 Wondring if any walked without light.
 Love hearing it laug'd with his tender mother,
 And smiling sayed, be thou as bold as other.
 Forth with love came, no darke night-flying spright,
 Nor hands prepar'd to slaughter, me affright.
 Thee feare I too much: onely thee I flatter,
 Thy lightning can my life in pieces batter.
 Why envieſt me this hostile dende vnbarre,
 See how the gates with my teares wat' red are.
 When thou stood'st naked ready to be beate,
 For thee I did thy miſtris faire entreate.
 But what entreates for thee ſome-times tooke place,
 (O miſchiefe) now for me obtaine ſmall grace.
Gratiſ thou maiest be free give like for like
 Night goes away: the doores barre backward ſtrike, Strike, ſo againe hard chaines ſhall binde thee never,
 Nor ſervile water ſhalt thou drinke for ever.
 Hard-hearted Porter doeſt and wilt not heare,
 With ſtiſſe oake propt the gate doth ſtill appeare.
 Such rampierd gates beſeiged Citties ayde,
 In miſt of peace why art of armes afraide?
 Excludſt a lover, how wouldſt vſe a foe?
 Strike backe the barre, night faſt away doth goe,
 With armes or armed men I come not guarded.
 I am alone, were furious love diſcarded.
 Although I would, I cannot him caſhiere,
 Before I be devided from my geere.
 See love with me, wine moderate in my braine,
 And on my haire a crowne of flowers remaine.
 Who feares theſe armes? who will not goe to meete the Night runnes away; with open entrance greete them.
 Art careleſſe? or iſt ſleepe forbids thee heare,
 Giving the windeſ my words run-ning in thine eare.

Well

· OVIDS ELEGIES: ·

Well I remember when I first did hire thee,
 Watching till after mid-night did not tire thee.
 But now perchance thy weach with thee doth rest,
 Ah how thy lot is above my lot blest:
 Though it be so, shut me not out therefore,
 Night goes away: I pray thee ope the doore,
 Erre we? or doe the turned hinges sound,
 And opening doores with creaking noyse abound?
 We erre: a strong blast seem'd the gates to ope:
 Aie me how high that gale did lift my hope!
 If Boreas beares Oritbyas rape in minde, (winde:
 Come breake these deafe doores with thy boisterous
 Silent the Cittie is: nights deawie hoast,
 March fast away: the barre strike from the poast.
 Or I more sterne then fire or sword will turne,
 And with my brand the gorgeous houses burne.
 Night, love, and winne to all extreames perswade:
 Night, shamelesse wine, and love are fearelesse made.
 All have I spent: no threats or prayers move thee,
 O harder then the doores thou gardest I prove thee:
 No pritty wenches keeper maist thou bee:
 The carefull prison is more meete for thee:
 Now frosty night her flight begins to take,
 And Crowing Cocks poore soules to worke awaked
 But thou my Crowne from sad haire tane away,
 On this hard threshold till the morning lay.
 That when my mistresse there beholds the cast,
 She may perceiue how we the time did wast:
 What ere thou art, farewell, be like me paind,
 Carelesse farewell with my fault not disdained.
 And farewell cruell posts rough thresholds block,
 And doores conjoynd with an hard iron lock.

ELEGIA. 7.

Ad precandam amicam, quam verberaverat.

Bind fast my hands, they have deserved chaines
While rage is absent, take some friend the paines;
For rage against my wench mov'd my rash arme,
My Mistresse weepes whom my mad hand did harme,
I might have then my parents deare mis-us'd,
Or holy gods with cruell strokes abus'd.
Why? Ajax master of the seven-sould shield,
Butcherd the flockes he found in spacious field;
And he who on his mother veng'd his fire
Against the destinies durst, sharpe darts require.
Could I therefore her comely tresses teare?
Yet was she graced with her ruffled haire.
So faire she was, Atalanta there resembled,
Before whose bow th' Arcadian wild beasts trembled.
Such Ariadne was, when she bewayles
Her perjur'd Theſeus flying vovves and sayles,
So chaste Minerva did Cassandra fall
Deflower'd except, within thy Temple wall.
That I was mad, and barbarous all men cryed,
She nothing said, pale feare her tongue had tyed.
But secretly her looks with checks did trounce me,
Her teares, she silent, guilty did pronounce me.
Would of mine armes, my shoulders had beene scanted,
Better I could part of my selfe have wanted.
To mine owne selfe have I had strength so furious?
And to my selfe could I be so injurious?
Slaughter and mischiefes instruments, no better,
Deserved chaines these cursed hands shall fetter,
Punisht I am, if I a Romaine bear,
Over my Mistis is my right more great?
Tyſides left worst signes of villanie,

He

OFID3 ELEGIES.

He first a Goddess strooke, an other I;
 Let he harm'd lesse, whom I profess'd to love;
 Harm'd : a foe did Diomedes anger move.
 Go now thou Conquerour glorious triumphs raise,
 Payvowes to Iove : engirt thy hayres with baies,
 And let the troupes which shall thy Chariot follow.
 To a strong man conquerd this Wench, hollow.
 Let the sad captive foremost with lockes spread
 On her white necke but for hurt cheekes be led.
 Meeter it were her lips were blew with kissing.
 And on her necke a wanton marke not missing.
 But though I like a swelling flood was driven,
 And as a prey vnto blinde anger given.
 Wa'st not enough the fearefull Wench to chide ?
 Nor thunder in rough threatnings haughty pride ?
 Nor shamefully her coate pull ore her crowne,
 Which to her wast her girdle still kept downe.
 But cruelly her tresses having rent
 My nayles to scratch her lovely cheekes I bent.
 Sighing she stood, her bloodlesse white lookes shewed
 Like marble from the Parian Mountaines heved.
 Her halfe dead ioynts, and trembling limbes I sawe,
 Like Poplar leaves blowne with a stormy flawe.
 Or slender eares, with gentle Zephire shaken,
 Or water tops with the warme south-winde taken.
 And downe her cheekes, the trickling teares did flow,
 Like water gushing from consuming snow.
 Then first I did perceiue I had offended,
 My blood, the teares were that from her descended.
 Before her foete thrice prostrate downe I fell,
 My feared hands thrice backe she did expell.
 But doubt thou art (revenge doth grieue appease)
 With thy sharpe nayles vpon my face to seaze.
 Bescratch mine eyes, spare not my lockes to breake,
 (Anger will helpe thy hands though nere so weake,)

*Execratur lenam, quæ puellam suam meretricis

T Here is who ere will know a bawle aright,
Give care, there is an old trot Dipsas hight;
Her name comes from the thing: she being wise,
Sees not the morne on rosie horses rise.
She magick arts and Theffale charmes doth know,
And makes large streames back to their fountaines flow.
She knowes with gras, with thrids on wrög wheels spurn
And what with Mares rank humour may be done.
When she will, cloudes the darkened heav'n obscure,
When she will, day shines every where most pure,
(If I have faith) I saw the starres drop blood,
The purple moone with sanguine visage stood.
Her I suspect among nights spirits to fly,
And her old body in birds plumes to lie.
Fame saith as I suspect, and in her eyes,
Two eye-balles shine and double light thence flies.
Great grand-fires from their ancient graves she chides,
And with long charmes the solide earth divides.
She drawes chaste women to incontinence,
Nor doth her tongue want harmefull eloquence.
By chaunce I heard her talke, these words she sayd,
While closely hid betwixt two doores I layd.
Mistris thou knowest, thou hast a blest youth pleas'd
He staide, and on thy lookes his gazes seaz'd.
And why shouldst not please? none thy face exceeds,
Aye me, thy body hath no worthy weedes.
As thou art faire, would thou wert fortunate,
Wert thou rich, poore should not be my state.

Th'oppo-

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Th' opposed starre of Mars hath done thee harme;
Now Mars is gone : Venus thy side doth warme.
And brings good fortune, a rich lover plants;
His love on thee; and can supply thy wants.
Such is his forme as may with thine compare,
Would he not buy thee thou for him shouldst care.
She blush't : red shame becomes white cheekes, but this,
If feigned, doth well ; if true it doth amisse.
When on thy lappe thine eyes thou dost deject,
Each one according to his gifts respect.
Perhaps the Sabines rude, when Tatius reign'd,
To yeeld their love to more then one disdain'd,
Now Mars doth rage abroad without all pittie,
And Venus rules in her Aeneas Citie.
Faire women play, shee's chaste whom none will have,
Or but for bashfulnesse her selfe would crave.
Shake off these wrinckles that thy front assault,
Wrinckles in beauty is a grievous fault.
Penelope in bowes her youths strength tride,
Of horne the bowe was that approv'd their side.
Time flying slides hence closely and deceaves vs,
And with swift horses the swift yeare soone leaves vs,
Brasse shines with vse; good garments would be worne,
Houses not dwelt in, are with filth forlorne.
Beauty not exercise with age is spent,
Nor one or two men are sufficient.

 Nor let the armes of ancient lives beguile thee;
 Poore lover with thy transfires I exile thee.
 Who seekes, for being faire, a night to have,
 What he will give, with greater instance crave.
 Make a small price, while thou thy nets doest lay,
 Least they should fly, being tane, the tyrant play.
 Dissemble so, as lou'd he may be thought,
 And take heed, least he gets that love for nought.
 Deny him oft, feigne now thy head doth ake:
 And /fis now will show what scuse to make.
 Receive him soone, least patient vse he gaine.
 Or least his love oft beaten backe should waine.
 To beggers shut, to bringers opt the gate,
 Let him within heare: bard out lovers prate.
 And as first wrongd the wronged sometimes banish,
 Thy fault with his fault so repul'd will vanish.
 But never give a spacious time to ire,
 Anger delaide doth oft to hate retire.
 And let thine eyes constrained learne to weepe,
 That this, or that man may thy cheekes moist keepe,
 Nor, if thou conzonest one, dread to for-sweare,
 „Venus to mocke men lendes a sencelesse care.
 Servants fit for thy purpose thou must hire,
 To teach thy lover, what thy thoughts desire.
 Let them aske some-what, mahy asking little,
 Within a while great heapes grow of a little,
 And sister, Nurse, and mother spare him not,
 By many hands great wealth is quickly got.
 When causes faile thee to require a gift,
 By keeping of thy birth make but a shift,
 Beware least he variual'd loves secure,
 Take strife away, love doth not well endure.
 On all the beds men tumbling let him viewe
 And thy necke with lascivious markes made blew.

ALL Lovers warre, and Cupid hath his tent
 Atticke, all lovers are to warre farre sent.
 What age fits Mars, with Venus doth agree
 Tis shame for old inwaire on love to be.
 What yeares in soldiers Captaines doe require
 Those in their lovers, pretty maydes delive.
 Both of them watch: each on the hard earth slopes:
 His Mistis dores this, that his Captaines keepes.
 Souldiers must trauaile farre: the wench forth send
 Her valiant lover followes without end.

 And treades the deserts snowy heapes to cover.
 Going to sea, East windes he doth not chide

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Who but a souldier or a lover is bold
 To suffer storme mixt snowes with nights sharpe cold?
 One as a spy doth to his Enemies goe
 The other eyes his rivall as his foe.
 He Citties great, this thresholds lies before :
 This breakes Towne gates, but he his Mistris dore,
 Oft to invade the sleeping foe tis good
 And arm'd to shed vnarmed peoples blood
 So the fierce troupes of Thracian Rhesus fell
 And Captive hories had their Lord fare-well.
 Such Lovers watch till sleepe the hus-band charmes,
 Who slumbring, they rise vp in swelling armes.
 The keepers hands and corps-dugard to passe
 The souldiers, and poore lovers worke ere was Doubtfull is warre and love, the vanquisht rise
 And who thou never think' it should fall downe lyes.
 Therefore who ere love sloathfulnesse doth call,
 Let him surcease : love tries wit best of all.
Achilles burn'd Briseis being tane away?
Trojanes destroy the Greeke wealth, while you may.
Hector to armes went from his wives imbraces,
 And on Adromache his helmet laces.
 Great Agamemnon was, men say amazed,
 Ou Priams loose-trest daughter when he gazed.
Mars in the deed the black-smithes net did stabb
 In heaven was never more notorious fable.
 My selfe was dull and faint, to sloath inclinde
 Pleasure, and ease had mollified my minde.
 A faire maides care exp. ld this sluggishnesse,
 And to her tents will'd me my selfe addresse,
 Since mayst thou see me watch and night warres move
 He that will not grove slothfull let him love.

Such as was Leda, whom the God deluded
In snowy-white plumes of a false swanne included.
Such as Amimone through the dry fields strayed

Such wert thou; and I fear'd the Bull and Eagle
And what ere love made love shold thee invagle,
Now all feare with my mindes hot love abates
No more this beauty mine eyes captivates.
Ask: why I change? because thou crav'st reward:
This cause hath thee from pleasing me debar'd.
While thou wert plaint, I lov'd thy mind and face:
Now inward faults thy outward forme disgrace.
Love is a naked boy, his yeares saunce stain'd
And hath no cloathes, but open doth remain'd
Will you for gaine have Cupid sell himselfe?
He hath no bosome, where to hide base pelfe.

To serve for pay beseeches not wanton gods.

Making her joy according to her hire.
 The sport being such, as both alike sweete try it
 Why should one sell it, and the other buy it?
 Why should I loose, and thou gaine by the pleasure
 Which man and woman reape in equall measure?
 Knights of the post, of perjuries make saile
 The vnjust Iudge for bribes becomes a stale:
 Tis shame sold tongues the guilty should defend
 Or great wealth from a judgement seate ascend,
 Tis shame to grow rich by bad merchandize,
 Or prostitute thy beauty for bad prize,
 Thankes worthily are due for things vabought
 For beds ill hyr'd we are indebted nought.
 The hirer payeth all, his rent discharg'd
 From further duty he rests then enlarg'd
 Faire Dames for-bear rewards for nights to crave
 Ill gotten goods good end will neuer have
 The Sabine gauntlets were too dearly wonne
 That unto death did presse the holy Nunne.
 The sonne slew her, that forth to meete him went,
 And a rich neck-lace caus'd that punishment.
 Yet thinke no scorne to aske a wealthy churle
 He wants no gifts into thy lap to hurle,
 Take clustred grapes from an orcladen Vine
 Many bounteous love Alcinous fruit resigne:
 Let poore men shew their service, faith, and care
 All for their Mistresse, what they have, prepare.
 In verse to praise kind Wenches tis my part,
 And whom I like, eternize by my art.

 The Fame that verse gives doth for ever last.
 To give I love, but to be ask't disdaine
 Leave asking, and Ile give what I refraine.

Poore wretches on the tree themselves did strangle
There sat the hang-man for mens necks to angle.
To hoarse scritch-owles foule shadowes it allowes
Vultures and furies nestled in the boughies.
To these my love I foolishly committed
And then with sweet words to my Mistresse fitted.
More fitly had thy wrangling bonds contained
Front barbarous lips of some Atturney strained.

 Hold in thy rosy Houses that they move not?
 Ere thou rise, starres teach sea-men, where to saile
 But when thou commest they of their courses faile.
 Poore travellers though tyr'd, rise at thy sight,

 Farewell Corinna cryed thy dying tongue.
Elisum hath a wood of holme-trees blacke,

 There good birds rest (if we beleeve things hidden)
 Whence uncleane fowles are said to be forbidden.
 There harmlesse Syrans feed all abroad the river,

ELEGY.

Amica se purgat quod amicum non amet.

Dost me of new crimes alwayes guilty frame;
 To over-come, so oft to fight I shame;
 If on the Marble Theater I looke,
 One among many is to grieve thee tooke;
 If some faire wench me scerely beholds,
 Thou arguest she doth secret markes unfold;
 If I praise any, thy poore haire's thou carest,
 If blame, dissembling of my fault thou fearest;
 If I looke well, thou thinkst thou dost not move;
 If ill, thou sayest I dye for others love;
 Would I were culpable of some offence,
 They that deserve plaine, beards with patience;
 Now rash accusing, and thy vaine believe,
 Forbid thine anger to procure my griefe;
 Loe how the miserable great eared Ass,
 Duld with much beating slowly forth doth passe;
 Behold Cypassis went to dresse thy head,
 Is charg'd to violate her Mistresse bed;
 The Gods from this sinne rid me of suspicion,
 To like a base wench of dispisd condition;
 With Venus game who will a servant grace
 Or any back made rough with stripes imbrace.

Who that our bodies were comprést bewrayde?
Whence knowes Corinna that with thee I playd?
Yet blusht I nor, nor usde I any saying,
That might be urg'd to witnesse our false playing;
What if a man with bond women offend,
To prove him foolish did I ere contend?
Achilles burnt with face of captive Briseis,

Greater then these my selfe I nor esteeme,
What graced Kings in me no shame I deeme.
But when on thee her angry eyes did rush,
In both my cheekes she did perceive the blush.

Thou Goddess doest command a warme South-blast,
My selfe oathes in Carpathion seas do cast.
For which good turne my sweet reward repay,
Let me lye with thee browne Cypasse to day.

O Cupid that doest never cease my smart,
O boy that lyest so slothfull in my heart.
Why me that alwayes was thy souldier found,

Why burnes thy brand, why strikes thy bow thy friends?
More glory by thy vanquish't foes affends.
Did not Pelides whom his Speare did grieve,
Being requir'd, with speedy helpe relieve?
Hunters leave taken beasts, pursue the chase,
And then things found doe ever further pace.
We people wholly given thee, seele thine armes,
Thy dull hand stayes thy striving enemies harmes;
Doest joy to have thy hooked Arrowes shaken,
In naked bones? love hath my bones left naked.
So many men and maidens without love,
Hence with great laud thou mayest a triumph move.
Rome if her strength the huge world had not filld,
With strawie cabins now her courts should build.
The weary souldier hath the conquerd fields,
His sword layed by, safe, though rude places yeelds.
The Docke in harbours ships drawne from the foulds,
Horse freed from service range abroad the woods.
And time it was for me to live in quiet.
That have so oft serv'd pretty wenches dyer,

And purple love resumes his darts againe.
Strike boy, I offer thee my naked brest,
Here thou hast strength, here thy right hand doth rest.
Here of themselves thy shafts come, as if shot,
Better then I, their quiver knowes them not.
Haplesse is he that all the night lyes quiet
And slumbring, thinkes himselfe much blessed by it.
Foole, what is sleepe but image of cold death,
Long shalt thou rest when Fates expire thy breath.
But me let craftie damzels words deceive,
Great joyes by hope I inly shall conceive.
Now let her flatter me, now chide me hard,
Let her enjoy me oft, oft be debar'd.
Cupid by thee, Mars in great doubt doth trample,

Venus, why doublest thou my endlesse smart?
Was not one vrench enough to grieve my hart?
Why addst thou stars to heaven, leaves to greene-wood
And to the vast deepe sea fresh-water foulds?
Yet this is better farre then lye alone,
Let such as be mine enemies have none:
Yea let my foes sleepe in an empty bed,
And in the midst their bodies largely spread.
But may sott love rowse up my drowisie eyes,
And from my mistlike bolome, leeme rise.
Let one vrench cloy me with sweet loyes delight
If one can doe't, if not, two every night.
Though I am slender, I have store of pith
Not want I strength, but weight to presse her with.
Pleasure addes fuell to my full-full fire

Sterne was her front, her looke on ground did lye.
Her left hand held abroad a regall scepter,
The Lydian buskin fit places kept her.
And first he sayd, when will thy love be spent?
O Poet carelesse of thy argument.
Wine-bibbing banquets tell thy naughtinesse,
Each crosse-ways corner doth as much expresse.
Of some poynts at the prophet passing by,
And this is he whom fierce love burnes, they cry.
A laughing stocke thou art to all the citie,
While without shame thou singst thy lewdnesse dittie.
Tis time to move grave things in lostie stile,
Long hast thou loyter'd, greater workes compile.
The Subject hides thy wit, mens acts resound,
This thou wilt say to be a worthy ground.
Thy muse hath played what may milde girles content,

OVIDS ELEGIES.

And by those numbers is thy first youth spent.
 Now give the Roman Tragedie a name,
 To fill my lawes thy wanton spirit frame.
 This sayd, she mov'd her buskins gaily varnish't,
 And seaven times shook her head with thick lockes gar-
 The other smilde; (I wot) with wanton eyes, (aisht.
 Erre I? or myrtle in her right hand lyes.
 With loftie words stout Tragedie (she sayd)
 Why treadst me downe? art thou aye gravely played?
 Thou deignst unequall lines should the rehearse,
 Thou fighst against me using mine owne verse.
 Thy loftie stile with mine I not compare,
 Small doores unfitting for large houses are.
 Light am I, and with me, my ease light love,
 Not stronger am I then the thing I move.
Venus without me should be rusticall,
 This goddesse company doth to me befall.
 What gate thy stately words cannot unlocke,
 My flatt'ring speeches soone wide open knocke:
 And I deserve more then thou canst in verity,
 By suffering much not borne by thy severity.
 By me Corinna learns, couzning her guard,
 To get the doore with little noyse unhard.
 And slip't from bed cloth'd in a loose night-govine,
 To move her feete unheard in sitting downe.
 Ah how oft on hard doores hung I engrav'd,
 From no mans reading fearing to be sav'd:
 But till the keepers went forth, I forget not
 The maide to hide me in her bosome let not.
 What gift with me was on her birth day sent,
 But cruelly by her was drown'd and rent.
 First of thy minde the happie seedes I knewe,
 Thou hast my gift, which she would from thee sue.
 She left; I sayd, you both I must beseech,
 To emptie ayre may goe my fearefull speech.

With

OVIDS ELEGIES.

With scepters, & high bulkins th' one would dresse me,
 So through the world shold blight renown expresse me.
 The other gives my love a conquering name,
 Come therefore, and to long verse shorter frame.
 Grant Tragedy thy Poet times least title,
 Thy labour ever lasts, she asks but little.
 She gave me leave, soft loves in time make haste
 Some greater worke will urge me on at last.

Ad amicum cursum equorum spectantem.

I Sit not here the noble horse to see;
 Yet whom thou favour'st, pray may conqueror be,
 To sit and talke with thee I hither came,
 That thou mayst know with love thou mak'st me lame.
 Thou view'st the course, I thee: let either heed,
 What please them, and their eyes let either feed.
 What horse-driver thou favour'st most is best,
 Because on him thy care doth hap to rest.
 Such chaunce let me have: I would bravely runne,
 On swift speedes mounted till the race were done.
 Now would I slacke the reines, now lash their hide,
 With wheelles bent inward now the ring-turne side.
 In running if I see thee, I shall stay,
 And from my hands the reines will slip away,
 Ah Pelops from his coach was almost feld,
 Hippodameia looks while he beheld.
 Yet he attain'd by her support to have her,
 Let us all conquer by our mistresse favour.
 In vaine why fly'st backe? force conjoyntes us now:
 The places leaves this benefit allowe,
 But spare my wench thou at her right hand seated,
 By thy sides touching ill she is intreated.
 And sit thou rounder, that behind us see,

For shame presse not her backe with thy hard knee;
But on the ground thy cloathes too loosely lye,
Gather them up, or lift them loe will I.
Envious garments so good legges to hide,
The more thou look'st, the more the gowne envide:
Swift Atalanta flying legges like these,
Within his hands graspe did Hippomenes.
Coate-ruckt Dianas legges are painted like them,
When strong wilde beasts she stronger hunts to strike
Ere these were scene, I burnt: what will these do? (the Flames into flame, foulds thou powrest seas into.
By these I judge, delight me may the rest,
Which lye hid under her thin veile suppress.
Yet in the meane time wilt small winde bestowe,
That from thy fanne, mov'd by my hand may blow?
Or is my heart, of minde, not of the skie?
Is't womens love my captive brest doth frie?
While thus I speake, blacke dust her white robes ray:
Foule dust, from her faire body, goe away,
Now comes the pompe, themselves let all men cheere
The shout is nigh; the golden pompe comes heere.
First victory is brought with large spread wing,
Goddesse come here, make my love conquering.
Applaud you Neptune, that dare trust his wave,
The sea I use not: me my earth must have.
Souldier applaud thy Mars: no warres we move,
Peace pleaseth me, and in mid peace is love.
With Augures Phœbus, Phœbe with hunters stands,
To thee Minerva turne she crafter-mens hands.
Ceres and Bacchus Country-men adore.
Champions place Pollux, Cassor loves horsemen more,
Thee gentle Venus, and the boy that flies,
We praise: great goddess ayde my enterprize,
Let my new mistresse graunt to be beloved,
She becke, and prosperous signes gave as she mov'd:

What

OVIDS ELEGIES.

What Deus promis'd, promise thou we pray;
 Greater then her, by her leave th'art, Ile say.
 The Gods, and their rich pompe witnesse with me,
 For evermore thou shalt my mistress be.
 Thy legges hang downe, thou maicst, if that be best,
 Or while thy tiptoes on the foot-stoole rest.
 Now greatest spectacles the Prætor sends,
 Fower-chariot horses from the lists even ends.
 I see whom thou affectest: he shall subdue,
 The horses seeme, as they desire they knew.
 Alas he runnes too farre about the ring,
 What doest / thy wagon in lesse compasse bring.
 What doest unhappy? her good wishes fade,
 Let with strong hand the reyne to bend be made.
 One slowe we favour, Romans him revoke:
 And each give signes by casting up his cloake.
 They call him backe, least their gawnes tisse thy haire,
 To hide that in my bosome straight repaire.
 But now againe the barriers open lye;
 And forth the gay troupes on swift horses flye.
 At least now conquer, and out-runne the rest:
 My mistress with confirme with my request.
 My mistress hath her wish, my wish remaine:
 He holds the palme: my palme is yet to gaine,
 She smilde, and with quick eyes behight some grace,
 Pay it not heere, but in another place.

De amico, que perjuraverat.

VVhat are there Gods? her selfe she hath forswore,
 And yet remaines the face she had before.
 How long her lockes were, ere her oath she tooke:
 So long they be, since she her faith forooke,
 Faire white with rose red was before commit:

Now

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Now shine her lookes pure white and red betwixt;
 Her foute was small: her footes forme is most fit;
 Comely tall was she, comely tall shee's yet.
 Sharpe eyes she had: radiant like starres they be,
 By which sin perjur'd oft hath lyed by me.
 Insooth th'et' all powers graunt maides societies
 Falsely to iweare, their beauty hath some deitty;
 By her eyes I remember late she swore,
 And by mine eyes, and mine were pained sore.
 Say gods: if she unpunisht you deceive,
 For others faultes; why doe I losse receive.
 But did you not so envy Cepheus Daughter,
 For her ill-beautious Mother judg'd to slaughter.
 Tis not enough, she shakes your record off,
 And unreueng'd mocke: Gods with me doth scoffe.
 But by my paine to purge her perjuries
 Couzen'd, I am the couzeners sacrifice.
 God is a name, no substance, fear'd in vaine.
 And doth the world in fond beliefe decayne.
 Or if there be a god, he loves fine wenches,
 And all things too much in their sole power drenches.
Mars girt his deadly sword on for my harme:
Pallas lance strikes me with unconquered arme.
 At me Apollo bends his plyant bow:
 At me Ioves tight-hand lightning hatch to throw.
 The wranged Gods dread faire ones to offend,
 And feare those, that to feare them least intend.
 Who new will care the Altars to perfume?
 Tut, men should not their courage so consume.
Ioue throwes downe woods, and Castles with his fire:
 But bids his darts from perjur'd girls retire.
 Poore Semele among so many burn'd;
 Her owne request to her owne torment turn'd.
 But when her lover came, had she drawne backe,
 The fathers thigh should unborne Bacchus lacke.

Why

OVIDS ELIGIES.

Why grieke I? and of heaven reproches pen?
The Gods have eyes, and breasts as well as men.
Were I a God, I should give women leave,
With lying lips my God-head to deceave,
My selfe would sweare, the wenches true did sweare,
And I would be none of the gods severe.
But yet their gift more moderately use,
Or in mine eyes good wench no paine transfuse.

RVae man, 'tis vaine, thy damsell to commend
To keepers trust: their wits should them defend
Who, without feare, is chaste: is chaste in sooth
Who, because meanes want, doeth not she doth.
Though thou her body guard, her minde is stain'd:
Nor, least she will, can any be restrain'd.
Nor canst by watching keepe her minde from sinne.
All being shut out, th' adulterer is within.
Who may offend, sinnes least; power to doe ill,
The fainting seeds of naughtinesse doth kill.
Forbeare to kindle vice by prohibition,
Sooner shall kindnesse gaine thy wills fruition.
I saw a horse against the bitte stiffe-neckt,
Like lightning goe, his strugling mouth being checkt.
When he perceiv'd the reynes let slacke, he stayd,
And on his loose mane the loose bridle layd.
How to attaine, what is denyed, we thinke,
Even as the sicke desire forbidden drinke.
Argus had either way an hundred eyes,
Yet by deceit Love did them all surprize.

 She is nor chaste, that's kept, but a deare whore:

 Although thou chafe, stolne pleasure is sweet play,
 She pleaseth best, I feare, if any say.
 A free-borne wench, no right 'tis up to locke;
 So use we women of strange nations stocke.
 Because the keeper may come say, I did it,
 She must be honest to thy servants credit.
 He is too clownish, whom a lewd wife grieves,
 And this townes well knowne customes not beleeves.

 Never can these by any meanes agree.
 Kindly thy mistis use, if thou be wise,

 Her, from his swift waves, the bold floud perceav'd,
 And from the mid foord his hoarle voice upheav'd,
 Saying, why sadly treadst my bankes upon
Ilia, sprung from Idean Laomedon?
 Where's thy attire? why wand' rest heere alone?
 To stay thy tresses white yeyle hast thou none?
 Why weepest? and spoilst with teares thy watry eyes?

 This said he: shee her modest eyes held downe,
 Her wofull boosome a warme shower did deovne.
 Thrice she prepar'd to flie, thrice she did stay,
 By feare depriv'd of strength to runne away.
 Yet rending with enrag'd thumbe her tresses,
 Her trembling mouth these unmeet sounds expresse:
 O would in my fore-fathers tombe deepe layde,
 My bones had beene, while yet I was a mayde.
 Why being a wif all am I wooed to wed,

OVIDS ELEGIES.

Why stay I? men point at me for a whore,
 Shame, that should make me blush, I have no more.
 This said: her coate, hoodcwinckt her fearefull eyes,
 And into water desperately she flies.
 Tis said the slippery streame held up her brest,
 And kindly gave her, what she liked best.
 And I beleevc some wench thou hast affected:
 But woods, and groves keepe your faults undetected.
 While thus I speake, the waters more abounded &
 And from the channell all abroad surrounded.
 Mad streame, why dost our mutuall joyes deferre?
 Clowne, from my journey why dost me deterre?
 How wouldst thou slowe wert thou a noble fload?
 If thy great fame in every region stood.

Either she was foule, or her attire was bad,
 Or she was not the wench I wisht t'have had.
 Idly I lay with her, as if I lov'd not,
 And like a burthen griev'd the bed that mou'd not.
 Though both of vs perform'd our true intent,
 Yet could I not cast ankor where I meant.
 She on my necke her Ivery armes did throwe,
 Her armes farre whiter then the sytbian snow;
 And eagerly she kist me with her tongue,
 And vnder mine her wanton thigh she flung.
 Yea, and she soothd me vp, and calld me sire,
 And vsde all speech that might provoke, and stirre.
 Yet like as if cold Hemlocke I had drunke,
 He smacked me, hung downe the head and sunke.
 Like a dull Cipher, or rude blocke I lay,
 Or shade, or body was I who can say?
 What will my age do? age I cannot shunne,
 When in my prime my force is spent and done;
 I blush that being youthfull, hot, and lustie,
 I prove neither youth nor man, but old and rustie;
 Pure rose she, like a Nunne to sacrifice,
 Or one that with her tender brother lyes.
 Yet boarded I the golden Chie twise,
 And Libas, and the white cheekt Pisbo thrice.
Corinna crau'd it in a summers night,
 And nine sweete bowts we had before day-light
 What wast my limbs through some Thessalian charmes?
 Nay spells, and drugges do silly soules such harmes?
 With virgin waxe hath some imbast my ioynts?
 And pierc'd my liver with sharpe needles points?

Charmer

OPIDS ELEGIES:

Charms change e corne to grasse and make it die,
 By charms are running springs and fountaines dry.
 By charms mast drops from oakes, from vines grapes fall
 And fruite from trees when ther's no winde at all.
 Why might not then my sinewes be enchanted?
 And I grow faint as with some spirit haunted.
 To this adde shame: shame to performe it quaild me
 And was the second cause why vigour failede me
 My idle thoughts delighted her no more,
 Then did the robe or garment which she wore.
 Yet might her touch make youthfull Pylius fire,
 And Tirbon livelier then his yeares require.
 Even her I had, and she had me in vaine,
 What might I crave more, if I aske againe?
 I thinke the great gods grieu'd they had bestow'd,
 The benefit: which lewdly I for-slew'd.
 I wisht to be receiu'd in, in I get me,
 To kisse, I kisse: to lie with her she let me.
 Why was I blest? why made King to refuse it?
 Chuffe-like had I not gold and could not vse it?
 So in a spring thrives he that told so much.
 And lookes vpon the fruite he cannot touch.

 As she might straight have gone to church and praide,
 Well I beleeve, she kist not as she should,
 Nor vs'd the sleight and cunning which she could,
 Huge oakes, hard adamants might she have moved,
 And with sweete words cause deafe rocks to have mov.
 Worthy she was to moue both gods and men,
 But neither was I man nor lived then.
 Can deafe eare take delight when Phemius sings?

Seeing thou wouldst deceive me as before.
Thou couldest me : by thee surpris'd am I,
And bide sore losse with endlesse infamy.
Nay more the wench did not disdain a whit,
To take it in her hand, and play with it.
But when she sawe it would by no meanes stand,
But still droupt downe, regarding not her hand.
Why mockst thou me she cryed ? or being ill
Who had thee lie downe heere against thy will ?
Either th' art witcht with bould of frogs new dead
Or jaded camst thou from some others bed.

 If ought remains of us but name, and spirit,
Tibullus doth Elysius joy inherit.
 Their youthfull brooves with Ivie girt to meet him,
 With Calvus leard Catullus comes and greet him,
 And thou, if falsly charged to wrong thy friend,
Gallus that carst not bloud, and life to spend,
 With these thy soule walkes, soules if death release,
 The godly, sweet Tibullus doth increase.
 Thy bones I pray may in the urne safe rest,
 And may th'earths weight thy ashes nought molest.

ELEGIA. 9.

Ad Cerevem, conquerens quod ejus sacris cum amico concumbere non permittatur.

COME were the times of Ceres sacrifice,
 In emptie bed alone my mistress lies.
 Golden-hair'd Ceres crown'd with eares of corne,
 Why are our pleasures by thy meanes forborne?
 Thee, goddess, botintifull all nations judge,
 Nor lesse at mans prosperity any grudge.
 Rude husband-men bak'd not their corne before,
 Nor on the earth was knowne the name of floore.
 On mast of Oakes, first oracles, men fed,

This

OVIDS ELEGIES.

This was their meate, the soft grasse was their bed;
 First Ceres taught the seede in fields to swell,
 And ripe-earede corne with sharpe-edg'd fishes to sell;
 She first constraind Bulls neckes to beare the yoke,
 And untild ground with crooked plough-shares broke;
 Who thinks her to be glad at lovers smart,
 And worshipt by their paine, and lying apart?
 Nor is she, though she loves the fertile fields,
 A clowne, nor no love from her warme brest yeelds.
 Be witnesse Crete (nor Crete doth all things feigne)
Crete proud that Iove her noureery maintaine.
 There, he who rules the worlds starre-spangled towers
 A little boy drunke teate, distilling showers.
 Faith to the witnesse Ioves praise doth apply,
Ceres, I thinke, no knowne fault will deny.
 The goddesse saw Iason on Candyen Ide,
 With strong hand striking wild-beasts brist'led hide.
 She saw, and as her marrow tooke the flame,
 Was divers wayes distract with love and shame.
 Love conquer'd shame, the furrowes dry were burn'd,
 And corne with least part of it selfe return'd.
 When well-toss'd mattocks did the ground prepare,
 Being fit broken with the crooked share,
 And seeds were equally in large fields cast,
 The plough-mans hopes were frustrate at the last.
 The graine-rich goddesse in high woods did stray,
 Her long haire eare-wrought garland fell away.
 Onely was Crete fruitfull that plenteous yeare,
 Where Ceres went each place was harvest there.
Ida the seate of groves did sing with corne,
 Which by the wild boare in the woods was shorne;
 Law-giving Minos did such yeares desire;
 And wisht the goddesse long might feelee loves fire.
Ceres what sports to thee so grievous were,
 As in thy sacrifice wee them forbore?

Ad amicum, & cujus amore discedere non potest.

Long have I borne much, mad thy faults we make:
Dishonest love my wearied brest forsake,
Nor have I freed my selfe, and fled the chaine,
And what I have borne, shame to beare againe.
We vanquish, and treade tam'd love under feet,
Victorious wreathes at length my Temples greet.
Suffer, and harden: good growes by this griefe,
Oft bitter juyce brings to the sicke reliefe.
I have sustaind so oft thrust from the doore,
To lay my body on the hard moyst floore.
I know not whom thou lewdly didst imbrace,
When I to watch supplied a servants place.
I saw when forth a tyred lover went,
His side past service, and his courage spent:
Yet this is lesse, then if he had seene me,
May that shame fall mine enemies chance to be.
When have not I fixt to thy side close layed?
I have thy husband, guard and fellow playd.
The people by my company she pleas'd,
My love was cause that more men love she seazd.
What should I tell her vaine tongues filthy lyes,
And to my losse God, wronging perjuries?
What secret beekes in banquets with her youths,
With privy signes, and talke dissembling truths?
Hearing her to be sicke, I thither ranne,
But with my rivall sicke she was not than.
These hardned me, with what I keepe obscure,

 Now love, and hate my light breſt each way move;
 But victory, I thinke will hap to love.
 Ile hate, if I can, if not, love gainſt my will:
 Bulles hate the yoaſe, yet what they hate have ſtill.
 I flye her luſt, but follow beauries creature;
 I loath her manners, love her bodies feature.
 Nor with thee, nor without thee can I live,
 And doubt to which deſire the palme to give.
 Or leſſe faire, or leſſe lewd would thou mightſt bee,
 Beauty with lewdneſſe doth right ill agree.
 Her deeds gaine hate, her face intreateth love:
 Ah, ſhe doth more worth then her vices prove.
 Spare me, O by our fellow bed, by all
 The Gods who by thee to be perjurde fall,
 And by thy face to me a powre divine,
 And by thine eyes whoſe radiance burnes out mine.
 What ere thou art mine art thou: chooſe this courſe,
 Wilt have me willing, or to love by force?
 Rather Ile hoyſt up ſaile, and uſe the winde,
 That I may love yet, though againſt my minde.

 The bayde I play, lovers to her I gvide:
 Her gate by my hands is set open wide.
 'Tis doubtfull whether verse availe or harme,
 Against my good they were an envious charme,
 When Thebes, when Troy, when Cæsar should be writ,
 Alone Corinna moves my wanton wit.

 Nor doe I give thee counsell to live chaste,
 But that thou wouldst dissemble, when 'tis past.
 She hath not trod awry, that doth deny it;
 Such as confesse have lost their good names by it:
 What madnesse ist to tell nights pranks by day?
 And hidden secrets openly to bewray?
 The strumpet with the stranger will not doe,
 Before the roome be cleere, and doore put too.
 Will you make ship-wracke of your honest name?
 And let the world be witnesse of the same.
 Be more advise, walke as a Puritan,
 And I shall thinke you chaste, doe what you can.
 Slip still, onely deny it, when 'tis done,
 And before folke immodest speeches shunne.
 The bed is for lascivious toyings meet,
 There use all trickes, and tread shame under feet.

 And blush, and seeme as you were full of grace.
 Deceive all, let me erre, and thinke I am right,
 And like a Wittall thinke thee voyd of sight.
 Why see I lines so oft receiv'd, and given?
 And this bed and that by tumbling made uneven?
 Like one start up your haire tost and displac'd,
 And with a wantons tooth your neck new rac'd.
 Graunt this, that what you doe I may not see,
 If you weigh not ill speeches, yet weigh mee.
 My soule fleetes, when I thinke what you have done,

Epigrammes.

By I. D.

Ab Musam. 1.

• FLie merry Muse vnto that merry towne,
 Where thou maist playes, revels, and triumphes see,
 The house of Fame, and Theatre of renowne,
 Where all good wittes and spirits, loue to be.
 Fall in betweene their hands, that love and praise thee,
 And be to them a laughter and a iest:
 But as for them which scorning shall reprove thee,
 Disdaine their wits, and thinke thine one the best.
 But if thou finde any so grosse and dull,
 That thinke I doe to private Taxing leane:
 Bid him go hang, for he is but a gull,

And

EPIGRAMES.

And knowes not what an Epigramme does mean,
Which taxeth vnder a peculiar name,
A generall vice which merits publique blame.

Of a Gull, 2.

OFt in my laughing rimes, I name a gull,
But this new terme will many questions breede.
Therefore at first I will expresse at full,
Who is a true and perfect Gull indeed.
A Gull is he, who feares a Velvet gowne,
And when a wench is brave, dares not speake to her:
A Gull is he which traueseth the towne,
And is for marriage knowne a common woer.
A Gull is he, which while he proudly weares,
A silver hilted Rapier by his side:
Indures the lyes, and knockes about the eares,
Whilst in his sheath, his sleeping sword doth bide.
A Gull is he which weares good handsome cloathes:
And stands in presence stroaking vp his hayre.
And fillcs vp his vnperfect speech with oathes.
But speakes not one wise word throughout the yeare
But to define a gull in termes precise,
A Gull is he which seemes, and is not wise.

In Rasam. 3.

Rasus the Courtier, at the Theater,
Leaving the best and most conspicuous place,
Doth either to the stage himselfe transferre,
Or through a grate, doth shew his double face.
For that the clamorous fry of Innes of court,
Fills up the private roomes of greater price:
And such a place where all may have resort,
He in his singularity doth despise.
Yet doth not his particuler humour shun,
The common stewes and brothells of the towne,
Though all the world in troopes do thither run,
Cleane and vncleane, the gentle and the clowne.

A common seate that loves a common whore.

In Quintum. 4.

Quintus the dancer useth overmore,
His feet in measure and in rule to move.
Yet on a time he cald his Mistresse whore,
And thought with that sweet word to win her love:
Oh had his tongue like to his feet bin taught,
It never would have uttered such a thought.

In Plurimos. 5.

Faustinus, Sextus, Cinna, Ponticus.
With Gella, Lesbia, Thais, Rodope:
Rode all to Strawes for no cause serious,
But for their mirth, and for their lechery.
Scarce were they sealed in their lodging, when
Wenches, with wenches: men with men fell out.
Men with their wenches, wenches with their men,
Which straight dissolves this ill assembled rout.
But since the Divell brought them thus together,
To my discouraging thoughts it is a wonder.
Why presently as soone as they came thither,
The selfe same Divell did them part a sunder.
Doubtlesse it seemes it was a foolish divell,
That thus did part them, ere they did some evill.

In Titum. 6.

Titus the brave and valorous young gallant,
Three yeares together in this towne hath beene,
Yet my Lord Chancellors tombe he hath not seene:
Nor the New water worke, nor the Elephant.
I cannot tell the cause without a smile,
He hath beene in the Counter all this while.

In Katum. 8.

Kate being pleas'd, wisht that her pleasure could,
Indure as long as a Buffe-jerkin would,
Content thee Kate, although thy pleasure wasteth
Thy pleasures place like a buffe-jerkin lasteth.
For no buffe-jerkin hath bin oftner worne
Nor hath more scrapings, or more dressings borne.

In Librum. 9.

Liber doth vaunt how chaste he hath liv'd,
Since he hath bin seaven yeares in towne and more
For that he sweares he hath four only —
A Mayd, a wife, a widdow, and a whore.
Then Liber thou hast — all women kinde,
For a fitt sort, I know thou canst not finde.

In Medonem. 10.

Great Captaine Medon weares a chaine of gold,
Which at five hundred crownes is valued,
For that it was his graund-fires chaine of olde
When great King Henry Bullaigue conquered.
And weare it Medon for it may insue
That thou by vertue of this Masse chaine,
A stronger revinc then Bullaigue mayst subdue,
If wise mens liues be not reputed vaine.

For what said Philip King of Macedon?
There is no Castle so well fortified,
But if an Ass laden with gold comes on,
The guard will stoape, and gates flye open wide.

Mislikes the place, and fled into his feete,
And there it wanders vp and downe the streetes,
Dabled in the dirt, and soaked in the raine,
Doubtlesse his wit intends not to aspire,
Which leaves his head to travell in the mire.

In Severum. 13.

THe puritan Severus oft doth reade,
This text, that doth pronounce vaine speech a sinne,
That thing defiles a man that doth proceede,
From out the mouth, not that which enters in,
Hence is it, that we seldome heare him sweare,
And thereof as a Pharisee he vaunts,
But he devours more Capons in one yeare,
Then would suffice an hundred protestants.
And sooth those sectaries are gluttons all,
As well the thred-bare Cobler, as the Knight,
For those poore slaves which have not wherewithall
Feed on the rich, till they devour them quite
And so as Pharoes kine, they eat up eleane,
Those that be fat, yet still themselves be leane.

In Leucam. 14.

Leuca in presence once a fart did let,
Some laught a little, she refus'd the place
And mad with shame, did then her glove forget,
Which she return'd to fetch with bashfull grace:
And when she would have said my glove,
My fart (qd. she) which did more laughter move.

In Cosmum. 17.

Cosmus hath more discoursing in his head,
Then love, when Pallas issued from his braine:
And still he strives to be delivered,
Of all his thoughts at once, but all in vaine.
For as we see at all the play-house doores,
When ended is the play, the daunce and song:
A thousand townes-men, Gentlemen, and whores.
Porters and serving-men together throng,
So thoughts of drinking, thriying, wenching, warre,
And borrowing money, raging in his minde
To issue all at once so forward are
As none at all can perfect passage finde.

In Flaccum. 18.

Gerons mouldie memory corrects,
Old Holinshed our famous Chronicler
With morall rules, and pollicy collects,
Out of all actions done these fourescore yeares.
Accounts the time of every old event,
Not from Christs birth, nor from the Princes raigned,
But from some other famous accident,
Which in mens generall notice doth remaine.
The siege of Bulloigne and the Plaguy sweat,
The going to St. Quintins and New-haven,
The rising in the North, the frost so great,
That cart-wheele prints on Thamis face were scene.
The fall of money, and burning of Pauls steeple,
The blazing-starre and Spaniards overthrow.
By these events, notorious to the people.
He measures times, and things fore-past doth shew.
But most of all, he chiefly reckons by,
A private chaunce, the death of his curst wife.
This is to him the dearest memory
And the happiest accident of all his life.

The treble ruffles, long cloake, and doubler french,
He takes Tobacco, and doth weare a locke.
And wastes more time in dressing then a wench.
Yet this new fangled youth, made for these times
Doth above all, praise old George Gascoines times.

In Cineam. 23.

WHen Cineas comes amongst his friends in morning

As if for ever they had lost his love.
I seeing how it doth the humour fit
Of this fond gull to be saluted first
Catch at my cap, but move it not a whit:
Which to perceiving he seemes for spite to burst,
But Cineas, why expect you more of me,
Then I of you? I am as good a man,
And better too by many a quality.

 She hath a dull dead eye, a saddle nose,
 And ill shapt face with morpheu overspread.
 And rotten teeth which she in laughing showes.
 Briefly she is the filthiest wench in towne,
 Of all that doe the art of whoring vse:
 But when she hath put on her sattin.gowne,
 Her out lawne apron, and her velvet shooes.
 Her greene silke stockings, and her petticoat,
 Of taffaty, with golden fringe a-round,
 And is withall perfum'd with civet hot,
 Which doth her valiant stinking breath confound.
 Yet she with these additions is no more,
 Then a sweet, filthy, fine ill-favoured whore.

Then the most brave and all-daring wight,
That ever armes with resolution bore.

He that dares touch the most vnholosome whore,
That ever was retirde into the Spittle.

And dares court wenches standing at a doore,
(The portion of his wit being passing little.)

He that dares give his dearest friends offences,
Which other valiant fooles doe feare to do:

And when a feaver doth confound his senses,
Dare eate raw-beefe, and drinke strong wine thereto

He that dares take Tobacco on the stage,

Dares man a whore at noone-day through the streete:

Dares daunce in Paules, and in this formall age,

Dares say and doe what ever is vnmeet,

Whom feare of shame could never yet affright,

Who dares affirme that Silla dares not fight.

In Haywoodum. 29.

Haywood that did in Epigram excell,

Is now put downe since my light Muse arose

As Buckets are put downe into a Well,

Or as a schoole-boy putteth downe his hose,

In Dacum. 30.

AMongst the Poets Dacus numbred is,

Yet could he never make an English rime,

But some prose speeches I have heard of his,

Which have bin spoken many an hundreth time:

The man that keeps the Elipbant hath one,

Wherein he sells the wonders of the beast.

An other Bankes pronounced long ago,

When he his curtayles qualities exprest:

He

EPIGRAMES.

He first taught him that keeps the monuments,
At Westminster, his formall Tale to say.
And also him which Puppets represents,
And also him which with the Ape doth play:
Though all his Poetrie be like to this,
Amongst the Poets Dæda numbered is.

In Priscum. 31.

WHen Priscus raske from low to high estate,
Rode through the streete in pompous jollitie,
Cæsus his poore familiar friend of late,
Be-spake him thus: Sir now you know not me.
'Tis likely friend (quoth Priscus) to be so,
For at this time my selfe I do not know.

In Brunum. 32.

B*runus* which deemes himselfe a faire sweete youth,
Is thirte nine yeares of age at least:
Yet was he never, to confesse the truth,
But a drye starveling wach he was at best;
This gull was sicke to shew his Night-cap fine,
And his wrought pillow over-spread with lawne,
But hath bin well since his griefes cause hath line,
At Traffups by Saint Clements Church in pawne.

In Francum. 33.

WHen Francus comes to sollice with his whore,
He sends for Rods & strips himselfe stark naked:
For his lust sleepes, and will not rise be for e,
By whipping of the wench it be awaked.
I envie him not, but wish I had the powre,
To make my selfe his wench but one halfe houre.

In Castrem. 34.

Of speaking well, why doe we learne the skill?
Hoping thereby honor and wealth to gaine.
Sich rayling Castor doth by speaking ill,
Opinion of others wit and gold obaine.

EPIGRAMES.

In Septimium. 35

S*ep^timius* lives, and is like Garlicke scene,
For though his head be white, his blade is greener
This old foad Coult deserves a Martyres praise,
For he was burned in Queene Maryes dayes.

Of Tobacco. 36

H*omer* of Moly and Nepenthe sings,
Moly the Gods most soveraigne Hearbe divi ne,
Nepenthe Heavens drinke most gladnesse brings,
Hearts grieve expeles, and doth the wits refine,
But this our age another world hath found,
From whence an hearbe of Heavenly power is brought,
Moly is not so soveraigne for a wound,
Nor hath Nepenthe so great wonders wrought.
Iris Tobacco, whose sweete substantiall fume,
The hellish torment of the teeth doth ease,
By drawing downe, and drying vp the rewme,
The Mother and the Nurse of each disease,
It is Tobacco which doth colde expell,
And cleares the obstructions of the Arteries,
And sursets threatning Death digesteth well,
Decocting all the stomackes crudities.
It is Tobacco which hath power to clarifie,
The clowdie mists before dim eyes appearing,
It is Tobacco which hath power to rarifie.
The thick grosse humour which doth stop the hearing,
The wasting Hectique, and the Quartain Fever,
Which doth of Phisique make a nockerie,
The govt it cures, and helpes ill breaths for ever,
Whether the cause in Teeth or stomacke be.
And though ill breathes, were by it but confounded:
Yet that Medicine it doth farre excell,
Which by Sir Thomas Moore hath bin propounded.
For this is thought a Gentleman-like smell,
O that I were one of these mountie-bankes,

Which

EPIGRAMS:

Which praise their Oyles, and Powders which they sell;
My customers would give meeoyne with thanks,
I for this ware, forsooth a Tale would tell.
Yet would I use none of these rearmes before,
I would but say, that it the Pox will cure :
This were inough, without discoursing more,
All our brave gallants in the towne t'allure.

In Crassum. 37.

Cras^{us} his lyes are not pernicious lyes,
But pleasant fictions hurtfull unto none :
But to himselfe, for no man counts him wise,
To tell for truth, that which for false is knowne;
He sweares that Gaunt is three-score miles about,
And that the Bridge at Paris on the seyn,
Is of such thicknesse, length and breadth throughout,
That sixe score Arches can it scarce sustaine.
He sweares he saw so great a dead-mans scull,
At Canterbury digd out of the ground :
That would containe of wheat, three bushels full,
And that in Kent are twenty yeomen found,
Of which the poorest every yeare dispends,
Five thousand pound : these and five thousand mo,
So oft he hath recited to his friends :
That now himselfe, perswades himselfe 'tis so.
But why doth Crassus tell his lyes so rife,
Of Bridges, Townes, and things that have no life.
He is a Lawyer, and doth well espie;
That for such lyes an action will not lye.

In Philonem. 38.

Philo the Lawyer and the Fortune-teller,
The Schoole-master, the Midwife and the Bawd :
The Conjurer, the buyer, and the seller,
Of painting which with breathing will be thawd,
Doth practise Physicke, and his credit growes.
As doth the Ballad-singers auditoric.

Which

EPIGRAMES.

Which hath at Temple-barre his standing chofe;
 And to the vulgar fings an Ale-house storie.
 First stands a Porter, then an Oyfter-wife,
 Doth stint her cry, and stay her steps to heare him;
 Then comes a cut-purse ready with a knife,
 And then a countrey clyent passeth neere him.
 There stands the Constable, there stands the Whore,
 And listning to the song, heed not each other.
 There by the Serjeant stands the debtor,
 And doth no more mistrust him then his brother.
 Thus Orpheus to such hearers giveth Musique,
 And Philo to such patients giveth Physicke.

In Fuscum. 39.

Fuscus is free, and hath the world at will,
 Yet in the course of life that he doth leade
 He's like a horse which turning round a mill,
 Doth alwayes in the selfe-same circle treade.
 First he doth rise at ten, and at eleven
 He goes to Gyls, where he doth eat till one;
 Then sees a Play till sixe, and sops at seaven;
 And after supper, straight to bed is gone.
 And there till tenne next day he doth remaine;
 And then he dines, and sees a commedy,
 And then he suppes, and goes to bed againe:
 Thus round he runnes without variety:

Save that sometimes he comes not to the play,
 But falls into a whore-house by the way.

In Afrum. 40.

THe small feast Afer, travailes to the bursse,
 Twice every day the newest newes to heare,
 Which when he hath no money in his purse,
 To rich mens tables he doth often beare:
 He tells how Gronigen is taken in,
 By the brave conduct of illustrious Vere:
 And how the spanish forces Brast would win,

But

EPIGRAMS:

But that they doe victorious Norris scarce
No sooner is a ship at sea surpris'd,
But straight he learns the naues & doth disclose it
Faile written in a scrowle he hath names,
Of all the viddowes which the Plague hath made,
And persons, times and places, still he frames,
To every tale the better to perswade:
We call him Fame; for that the wide-mouth slave,
Will eate as fast as he will write: lies
For Fame is fad an hundred mouthes to haue,
And he eates more then would five score suffice.

In Paulam. 41.

By lawfull mart, and by villanfull stealth,
Paulus in state of easy fortune
Derives out of the Ocean so much wealth,
As he may well maintaine a Lords estate,
But on the land a little gulfie there is,
Wherein he drownes all the wealth of his.

In Lucum. 42.

Lucus which lately is to Venice gone,
Shall if he do returne gaine three for one,
But ten to one his knowledge and his wit,
Will not be battered or increased by his.

In Publium. 43.

Publius student at the common law,
Ofte leaues his Bookes, and for his recreation
To Parish-gardens doth himselfe withdrawe,
Where he is ravish with such delc&ation
As downe amongst the Beares and Dogges he goes,
Where whilst he skipping tries head to head,
His fatten doublet and his seluer hose,
Are all with spittle from above he spread.
When he is like his fathers country shall Stinking with dogges, and mured all with haules,
And rightly too on him this filth doth fall.

Which

EPIGRAMES

Which for such filthy sports his bookes forsakes,
Leaving old Ployden, Dyer, and Brooke alone,
To see old Harry Munke, and Sagarson.

In Sillem. 44.

WHEN I this proposition had defended,
A coward cannot be an honest man,
Thou Silla seemest forth with to be offended
And holds the contrary and sweares he can,
But when I tell thee that hee will forsake
His dearest friend, in perill of his life,
Thou then art chang'd and saist thou didst mistake,
And so we end our argument and strife.

Yet I thinke oft, and thinke I thinke aright,
Thy argument argues thou wilt not fight.

In Dactyl. 45.

DACS with some good colour and preence,
Teames his loves beauty silent eloquence:
For she doth lay more colours on her face,
Then ever Tully vs'd his speech to grace.

In Marcum. 46.

WHY dost thou Marcus in thy misery,
Raile and blasphemie, and call the heau'ns vnlind,
The heavens do owe no kindnesse vnto thee,
Thou hast the heavens so little in thy minde
For in thy life thou never vsst prayer,
But at Primero, to encounter faire.

Meditations of Tull. 47.

SEE yonder melancholic Gentleman,
Which hoodewinked with his hat, alone doth sit,
Thinke what he thinkes and tell me if you can,
What great affaires troubles his little wit.
He thinkes not of the war twixt France and Spaine
Whether it be for Europe good or ill,
Nor whether the Empire can it selfe maintaine
Against the Turkish power encroching still.

Nor

EPIGRAMES.

Nor what great towne in all the Netherlands,
The States determine to besiege this spring,
Nor how the Scottish policy now stands,
Nor what becomes of the Irish murthering,
But he doth seriously bethinke him whether
Of the guld people he bee more esteem'd,
For his long cloake, or his great blacke feathers,
By which each gull is now a gallant deem'd:
Or of a Iourney he deliberates,
To Paris-garden, cock-pit or the play.
Or how to beate a Dog he meditates,
Or what he shall unto his mistresse say:
Yet with these thoughts he thunks himselfe most fit
To be of Counsell with a King for wit.

Ad Musam. 48.

P^Ræcidit mus, have done, for it is time,
Since lowly Ponticus envies my fame,
And swears the better sort are much to blame
To make me so well knowne for my ill rime;
Yet Banckes his horse is better knowne then he,
So are the Cammels and the western Hog,
And so is Lepidus his printed Dog:
Why doth not Pantius their fames envie,
Besides this mule of mine, and the blacke feather
Grew both together in estimation,
And both growne stale, were cast away together:
What fame is this that scarce lasts out a fashion.
Onely this last in credit doth remaine,
That from hence-forth, each bastard cast forth rime
Which doth but savour of a libell vaine,
Shall call me father, and be thought my crime.
So dull and with so little sence end'd,
Is my grosse-headed judge the multitude.

FINIS.
